HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, APRIL 2, 1934

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, we praise Thee that Thy heart is on the side of every man who needs divine love, divine pity, and mercy. In the center of all power, whence issues that which controls all law, and in the midst of all wisdom is a heart full of compassion. O draw near to us, for Thou dost understand us better than we ourselves. Spread Thy wings, that under their shadow we may be secure. We thank Thee that Thou art revealed by Thy love in the glory of the whole human family. We rejoice that Thou dost minister in the household of the ages. O may the whole family be moving in the stream of divine influence, making society better, the race better, our country better, the world better; O may it run through the channels of all the earth. In the name of our Savior. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday, March 29, was read and approved.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that on tomorrow, immediately after the reading of the Journal, the Clerk shall call the bills on the Private Calendar, beginning with the star, and that bills unobjected to shall be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole; and that Calendar Wednesday business of this week be dispensed with and that on Wednesday it shall be in order to consider business that would have been in order today.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS. Yes.

Mr. RANKIN. That includes suspensions, does it?

Mr. BYRNS. Yes; whatever business is in order today, if this request is granted, will be in order on Wednesday.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, does the gentleman from Tennessee understand that the sugar bill will be brought up on Wednesday?

Mr. BYRNS. That has been my general understanding.

Mr. HOPE. In that connection I wonder if we could not have some agreement as to an extension of time so far as the consideration of the sugar bill is concerned.

Mr. BYRNS. I think the gentleman from Texas [Mr. JONES] will be reasonable in the matter of allowing time; but I do want to say to the gentleman from Kansas that we have quite a number of other suspensions, and we have quite a long Consent Calendar, and there are some other matters that are pressing that will be ready the latter part of this week. I hope whatever additional time is arranged for on the sugar bill can be made as short as possible.

Mr. HOPE. Of course, the sugar bill, in my judgment, is one which should never be brought up under suspension anyway. It is a bill which ought to have more consideration with opportunity for amendment; but I understand the domestic-sugar industry is very much interested in having this bill go through at as early a date as possible, and I would not have any objection, under the circumstances, to having it come up in this way if we may have adequate time to discuss it.

Mr. BYRNS. How much time does the gentleman think ought to be allowed?

Mr. HOPE. I should think a minimum of 1 hour on the side.

Mr. BYRNS. I hope the gentleman will agree to reduce that. If we could make it 40 minutes to the side, it would be very agreeable, especially if the gentleman and others will promise to help us keep the House in session on Wednesday until we can make up for the extra time consumed and also consider some of the bills on the calendar, because there are a number of Members interested in the Consent Calendar.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, that will be satisfactory to me, if it is agreeable to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. HOPE. Under the circumstances that will be agreeable.

Mr. FISH. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I should like to ask the majority leader if he expects, with the Speaker's cooperation, to bring up Senator JOHNSON's bill to prevent extending loans to foreign nations that have defaulted in the payment of their debts.

Mr. BYRNS. The Speaker can answer that question better than I can, but I understand that is on his list.

Mr. FISH. I have talked with the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and I should like to make the same request for a limited additional time of 20 minutes more on the side.

Mr. BYRNS. We have made a concession with respect to the sugar bill. Would not the gentleman be willing to have 30 minutes on each side or 1 hour for consideration of the bill?

Mr. FISH. I am a good compromiser and a good bargainer, and I accept that suggestion.

Mr. BYRNS. And I hope no one else will make a similar request with respect to any of the other bills.

Mr. LUNDEEN. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will permit. I should like to inquire about the Minnesota fire sufferers' bill. If today's business goes over, will this bill be taken up tomorrow or Wednesday?

Mr. BYRNS. It would be in order on Wednesday.

Mr. LUNDEEN. I am very much interested in seeing that the fire sufferers of northern Minnesota are compensated and paid in full for the terrible damage they suffered many years ago. The fires were the result of Federal negligence, and the United States should pay the bill.

Something has been done—that is true. But these people will never be satisfied until they are fully reimbursed. The Government can never pay for the agony and suffering—mental and physical—which they endured.

Many years ago, in the 1913 Session of the Minnesota Legislature, I introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a fire, flood, and disaster fund for the State of Minnesota. This was given a great deal of publicity in the Duluth Herald, News Tribune, and press of northern Minnesota. Had my plan at that time been carried out, this terrible injustice would have been righted instantly. At once and automatically the fund would have operated to aid these people.

The Minnesota fire sufferers—many of them—have been set back a decade or two in their finances. Had money been available at once, they could have gone ahead with their plans for homes, farms, and business. Owing to this terrible loss, they were stranded and left without means to progress.

Now is the time to act, and now is the time to do the square thing for these splendid citizens of the North Star State.

Mr. LUCE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do not understand the gentleman's request extends to giving opportunity for suspensions on Wednesday, other than those he has already referred to.

Mr. BYRNS. Well, I do not know just what is on the list of the Speaker. Of course, the question of suspensions rests altogether with the Speaker, and I do not know just what suspensions he has in mind. I understand these three bills are on his list.

Mr. LUCE. It was contemplated there should be adequate time for discussion of the home-loan-bond guarantee bill.

Mr. BYRNS. I do not think that bill will be taken up. That is one reason I am anxious to confine the consideration of these bills as much as we can so we may get to that measure, possibly Thursday or not later than Friday.

Mr. LUCE. I merely wanted to be certain that bill will not be taken up under suspension.

Mr. BYRNS. I do not think, Mr. Speaker, that bill is to be taken up under suspension.

Mr. STEAGALL. There will be no such effort, so far as I am concerned.

The SPEAKER. It will not be taken up under suspension.

Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I should like to ask what effect the gentleman's request has on the Consent Calendar.

Mr. BYRNS. It simply postpones consideration of the Consent Calendar until Wednesday, if this request is granted, and makes it in order on Wednesday.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, if this unanimous-consent request is granted and the House is to have 1 hour of debate on each side on the sugar bill—

Mr. BYRNS. I understood it was to be 40 minutes.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Even with that division of time, it is not unreasonable to hope, I suppose, that Members other than members of the House Committee on Agriculture may have an opportunity to submit certain observations on the bill.

Mr. BYRNS. That will rest with the gentleman from Texas and whoever demands a second, and I understand a second will probably be demanded by the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. HOPE].

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

EXECUTIVE ORDER—VETERANS' LEGISLATION (H.DOC. NO. 296)

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments and ordered to be printed:

These veterans' regulations amend Veterans' Regulation No. 1 (a), approved by me on June 6, 1933, and Veterans' Regulation No. 12, approved by me on March 31, 1933, and have been issued in accordance with the terms of title I, Public, No. 2, Seventy-third Congress, "An act to maintain the credit of the United States Government."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 27, 1934.

DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE EDWARD W. POU, OF NORTH CAROLINA

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, it is with profound sorrow that I announce to the House the death of our beloved colleague, EDWARD W. POU.

He has served for more than 33 years in this House as a Member from North Carolina. He was the dean of this House in point of service.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Pou acquired seniority and leadership here, not alone by his length of service but by his nobility of character and extraordinary mental attainments.

He passed away yesterday, on that beautiful Easter morning at his apartment in Washington. I believe that Mr. Pou was as much loved by the Membership of this House on both sides of the aisle as any man who ever sat in this body.

We shall mourn his loss both as Democrats and as Republicans. He served in many important capacities in this House during his long official life and acquitted himself with honor in all of them.

At the time of his death he was Chairman of the powerful Committee on Rules. He held the same position during the strenuous days of the World War. Those days took a large toll of his physical strength. He was always courteous and kindly to his colleagues, regardless of political situations. He was powerful in debate, clean, clear, and forceful. His mind grasped the essentials of every problem and went straight to the mark.

He was one of North Carolina's great citizens, and we are proud of the distinguished services which he has rendered to our State as a Member of this body. I know that every Member of this House will join with his colleagues from North Carolina in mourning his loss.

At some future time a day will be set aside to commemorate the public life and character of this distinguished man.

Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk at this time the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 318

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of Hon. EDWARD W. POU, a Representative from the State of North Carolina.

Resolved, That a committee of the the House be appointed to take order for superintending the funeral of Mr. Pou in the House of Representatives at 2 o'clock on Monday, April 2, 1934, and that the House of Representatives attend the same.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect the remains of Mr. Pou be removed from Washington to Smithfield, N.C., in charge of the Sergeant at Arms, attended by the committee, who shall have full power to carry these resolutions into effect, and that the necessary expenses in connection therewith be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House communicate these proceedings to the Senate and invite the Vice President and the Senate to attend the funeral in the House of Representatives and to appoint a committee to act with the committee of the House.

Resolved, That invitations be extended to the President of the United States and the members of his Cabinet, the Chief Justice, and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Diplomatic Corps (through the Secretary of State), the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy, the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps, and the Commandant of the Coast Guard to attend the funeral in the Hall of the House of Representatives.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that under the terms of the legislative appropriation bill, which has passed the House, he is authorized to appoint four Members as a funeral committee. The bill has not been enacted into law, but the Chair assumes that it will be enacted into law and is appointing four Members on the committee.

The Chair wishes also to state that a number of other Members of the House will attend the funeral in an unofficial capacity, including the minority leader, two members of the Rules Committee, the gentleman from Alabama, Mr. BANKHEAD, the gentleman from New York, Mr. O'CONNOR, and the Speaker of the House and the entire North Carolina delegation, and others.

The SPEAKER appointed as members to attend the funeral Mr. WEAVER, Mr. BULWINKLE, Mr. CLARK of North Carolina, and Mr. MARTIN of Massachusetts.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, the following leaves of absence were granted:

To Mr. KOCIALKOWSKI, indefinitely, on account of official business.

To Mr. KNUTSON, for 10 days.

To Mr. SCHUETZ, indefinitely, on account of official business.

To Mr. LARRABEE, for today, on account of illness.

To Mr. GRAY, for 4 days, on account of important business.

BILL PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee did on March 30, 1934, present to the President, for his approval, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 7513. An act making appropriations for the Departments of State and Justice and for the judiciary, and for the Department of Commerce and Labor, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, and for other purposes.

ORDER OF SERVICE

Benediction.....	The Chaplain of the House of Representatives

At 2 p.m. the Vice President and Members of the Senate entered the Chamber and occupied the seats assigned to them, the Vice President occupying a seat at the Speaker's table.

Then came the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, who took the seats assigned to them.

The body of the late Mr. Pou lay in state in the space in front of the Clerk's desk.

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Lift up your heads, O ye gates; be ye lifted up ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall come in.

Heavenly Father, renew in us the spirit that cleanses our divided hearts and deliver us from all self-assurance. O speak through our thoughts and direct the counsels of our meditations. Almighty God, our hearts are bathed in emotion as we wait in loving reverence in memory of one whose superb character and wise statesmanship have contributed so richly to our beloved country. He knew her history, he had learned her lessons, and he loved her institutions. All life is richer for his having passed this way. Grant that the influence of this noble son of Thine may live and remain an incentive to those of us who follow on. We are thankful that his strong will was ever tempered by his mighty charity, which flushed his placid face with an indescribable charm. Heavenly Father, we bless Thee for a life so beautiful in faith, so full of devotion, and so full of renown. How we rejoice that on Easter Morn, when the clouds and darkness that had clustered about the morning star of hope had faded into a new and glorious day, the heavens opened and his pure white soul became immortal. Comfort all bereaved ones, his colleagues, friends, and lead us all in peace up the hill-slopes of time. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A quartet from St. Margaret's Episcopal Church sang the hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace."

The Chaplain read the burial service.

The CHAPLAIN. Just a word by request, dear friends. We are this afternoon in the afterglow of earth's greatest day. How the multitudes of the wide world converge to one place, and that one place is a symbol of eternal hope and everlasting glory. What a secret hangs over the grave. I long since have learned, in some little way, not to work too hard at a lock where no complete key has been left.

What tears and what prayers hang over the tomb! And yet we wonder, we wonder. Yet as a sailor coming back to his homeland first scents the odors of the shoreline, as some Launfal comes back to his home, and in the distance hears the bells in the abbey, as in that picture, the Aurora, the weary pilgrim stops at the foothills and waits for the glorious sunlight in all its radiant beauty to break on the mountain top, so we wait for a complete solution of the mystery of immortality. I turn to Browning with these hours:

I see my way as the birds their paths; I shall arrive.

When the great philosopher and poet wrote that word of inspiration, a transition came into his life. Before that time, somewhat, he had been kneeling at the altar of Nature—Nature, beautiful, graceful, symmetrical, but still Nature. The big tree chokes to death the little tree. The big vine grips in a deathly hug the little vine. Nature is beautiful, but I find no great comfort in telling myself that God is omnipotent—my heart aches on; that God is omnipresent—my heart aches on; that God is all wisdom—my heart aches on. So in the hour of Browning's sorrow he went out for an afternoon walk, and the glorious, radiant moments of the late afternoon were passing away, dying down into the mysterious depths of holy night. He returned home, and he wrote:

While I was walking, the birds were still singing, the flowers were still blooming, the waters were still rippling, and my heart was still aching.

Then and there he saw the light of a new and beautiful experience.

Then that sweet and beautiful song, To a Waterfowl, by William Cullen Bryant:

There is a power whose care
Teaches thy way along that pathless coast—
The desert and illimitable air—
Lone wandering, but not lost.

He who, from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky they certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright.

What an inspiration, what a comfort, and that other song, Eternal Goodness:

And so beside the Silent Sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care.

Man is always seeking something. We look over our shoulders and see the pilgrims crowding about the stream called "The Fountain of Youth." We see others flocking near and far, seeking the beautiful, growing fields of beauty and glory, "The Eldorado." And yonder is the man in my thoughts who is ever seeking the "golden fleece", symbolical of the search of the human heart in all ages and in all generations; and when we read the Holy Grail, it tells the same story, namely, the quest of the human heart. Dear friends, and may I say neighbors, we learned two simple rules in natural philosophy, just two. Perhaps we could not remember another. One is that two bodies cannot occupy the same space at the same time. The other rule is that matter is indestructible. That is to say, the lower survives. I recall very directly the word of Mr. Edison when he was asked his greatest invention. He pointed to the electric light. In some form that substance will live. Will God Almighty care for that substance and allow the mind that conceived it and planned it and toiled for it to die? Burn a piece of coal and the ash and the gasses equal the original bulk. Will God Almighty care for coal and turn a deaf ear to the appeals of the heart that loved, to the breast that feels the throbs of undying, eternal sentiments and emotions. My friends, listen. It cannot be so.

O yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill,
To pangs of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt, and taints of blood.

That nothing walks with aimless feet,
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God hath made the pile complete.

That not a worm is cloven in vain,
That not a moth with vain desire
Is shriveled in a fruitless fire,
Or but subserves another's gain.

So runs my dream: but what am I?
An infant crying in the night;
An infant crying for the light;
And with no language but a cry.

I stretch lame hands of faith, and grope,
And gather dust and chaff, and call
To what I feel is Lord of all,
And faintly trust the larger hope.

It is the salvation of the world, namely, the undying hope that beats everlastingly in the human breast.

In conclusion, we are now, as I said in the beginning, standing in the afterglow of Easter Morning. At this moment I am reminded of what I may be permitted to call the second great prayer of the world:

Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom.
* * * Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in Paradise.

The first trophy of the cross was a human soul, and perhaps the institutions of the time, and of his day, had made him the wicked man that he was, and yet he was ushered through the gates of Paradise by our loving Savior. A poem in a London drawing room I picked up one day:

So I stand by the cross on the lone mountain crest,
Looking toward the ultimate sea;
In the gloom of the morn a ship lies at rest,
And one sails away from the lea.

One spreads its white sails on a far-reaching track,
With pennant and sheet flowing free;
One lies in the shadows with sails aback,
The ship that is waiting for me.

But lo! in the distance the clouds break away,
The gates glowing portals I see;
I hear from the outgoing ship in the bay
A song of the sailors in glee.

So I think of the luminous footsteps that bore
Him safe o'er dark Galilee,
And I wait for my ship to go to that shore—
In the ship that is waiting for me.

These 14 years I have passed in and out of this Chamber, I seldom said "Mr. Pou"; I said "Brother Pou"; he was so kindly and brotherly. There was a dignified simplicity in his beautiful character. Today in my study I was thinking the sentiments of Tennyson when he lost one of his dear friends:

Break, break, break,
On thy cold gray stones, O sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O, well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O, well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!

Break, break, break,
At the foot of thy crags, O sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

All that is left of our dear splendid friend and brother will soon be taken to his Carolina home, down yonder under the beautiful radiant skies, where the flowers and cypress grow, and I think if I could interpret his word this moment it could be said in the language of Robert Louis Stevenson:

Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live, and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me:
"Here he lies where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

Blessings on his sweet and beautiful memory. He made me think good thoughts. He inspired me to lead a good life. I shall prize his memory for many and many a day.

Mr. SABATH assumed the chair as Speaker pro tempore.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF HON. EDWARD WILLIAM POU, OF NORTH CAROLINA

Mr. RAINEY. Born in Alabama, educated in the University of North Carolina, a Presidential elector, solicitor for the fourth judicial district of North Carolina, 34 years a Member of Congress, Chairman of the powerful Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives—this is a brief outline of the busy useful life of Hon. EDWARD WILLIAM POU, whose body lies here today.

His death removes from this body the last of its Members who were here when I came, 30 years ago. During that long period of time I have been closely associated with him in the work of the Congress, and I have learned to admire and respect in the very highest degree his qualities as a man, a statesman, and a citizen. He will be missed here in the House as few men are missed.

Tomorrow, accompanied by the official committee of the House and Senate, by his family, and by his personal friends, his body will complete its journey back to the State he has represented in the Congress so long and so ably, back to the people he loved and who loved him.

It will be hard to fill his place. When a great tree crashes in the forest, it leaves a space which is not filled again for many decades of time.

His long life was characterized always by intense patriotism and devotion to duty. During the period of the World War he was Chairman of the great Rules Committee of the House; and again, during the present war against depression, he occupied that dignified, powerful, and influential position. He carried on even during the last 3 years, when his physical powers were weakened, but his mind remained perfectly clear and intensely active during his years of illness, and he was found always and until the last few days of his life at his post here in the House of Representatives, discharging efficiently and ably the important duties of his position.

During the period of the World War he made his full share of sacrifices for his country. On Armistice Day, and just before the peace program was put in operation, his son was killed in action on a battlefield of northern France.

In his death all of us who were so closely associated here with him experience a strong sense of personal loss.

I like to think of life as a journey over a broad highway. We start out in the morning traveling over a road watered with last night's rains, and the journey is always upward. There are those who branch out from the main traveled highway and go along into untraveled paths on either side. These are the pioneers; and finally, if they are successful in what they undertake, the highway of life broadens out and takes in also the paths over which they have traveled. A better and a wider highway is made for those who follow.

As we go along, there are places where the green ferns grow, and we ought to linger there, and Ed Pou knew how to do that. As we travel along, there are meadows where dreams come true, and Ed Pou found them many times, and so have you. And along the journey there are fields where the four-leaf clovers grow; they are the prizes of this life; and Ed Pou found them many times, and so have you. As we journey along, always upward, there comes always the call of the crest; and when you reach it, there is another ascent and another crest and another call, and so the journey is always upward until there comes a call at the last crest, and it comes always from the uttermost places that lie at the back of the sun. Some hear it early in life, some late in life, when they have had much of service back of them, as Ed Pou had, but it comes sooner or later to all. It is the great adventure of this life; and when we hear it, we slip our anchors and sail away over unknown seas to an unknown shore where at anchor lie the craft of those of our friends who have gone before.

Over the grave of EDWARD WILLIAM POU may the snows of winter lie light; over his grave may the winds of winter blow low; over his grave may the birds throughout the long summer days to come sing always their sweetest songs.

Good night, old friend, good night!

The SPEAKER resumed the chair.

Selection by the quartet.

Mr. SNELL. The death of EDWARD W. POU casts gloom over his colleagues in the House of Representatives. Not only was he dean in length of service in the House of Representatives but he was dean as well in the true affections of its Members.

In the beginning of the Sixty-fifth Congress I was assigned to the Rules Committee. Mr. Pou was its chairman, and from the very first I learned to admire and respect him. His character, ability, and personal charm attracted me. This early friendship matured and ripened during the intervening 18 years and will always remain with me as a cherished memory.

As I served under Mr. Pou when he was Chairman of the Rules Committee, likewise he was the ranking minority member of that committee during the 8 years I was its chairman; yet during the 14 years we were on that committee together, never was there the slightest misunderstanding, although many times we were impelled to take opposing positions at the committee table and on the floor of the House.

It fell to our lot, his and mine, to oppose each other more frequently in debate, I dare say, than any other two Members, on account of the necessity of presenting our party's respective positions. But, party considerations aside, we seldom disagreed on fundamentals.

The last time I talked with Mr. Pou, just a few days ago, he referred to our long and pleasant association on the Rules Committee.

Ed Pou was more than just an ordinary Member. His influence was more than just what he said in debate. His constituents recognized this in keeping him here to serve them. He was fast approaching the record set by the late

Gilbert N. Haugen for the longest continuous service in the House. This long service, his personal charm, and his fine ability just naturally spread a stabilizing influence over all with whom he came in contact.

In these troublous times the country can ill afford to lose a man of the fine character and mental equipment of our friend Pou. To me he represented in his everyday life the highest type of the twentieth-century American manhood.

I am proud to say he was my friend. I deeply regret his passing.

On Easter Morning he left us. The birds and flowers of awakening life are singing his requiem. And if we believe that there shall be a resurrection and a reunion, we shall meet him again.

Selection by the quartet.

The CHAPLAIN. And now, unto Him who is able to keep you from falling and present you faultless before the presence of His glory with great joy, unto the only wise God, our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. And now may grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit abide with us and keep us always. Amen and Amen.

The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and the Vice President and Members of the United States Senate retired from the Chamber.
